On demand telephone connection in Delhi

*70. SHRI O. P. KOHLI: Will the Minister of COMMUNICATIONS be pleased to state:

(a) whether the Department of Telecommunications had envisage that by March, 1997, telephones would be available on demand in Delhi;

(b) if so, whether this target is likely to be achieved within the fixed time-frame; and

(c) if not, the reasons therefor?

THE MINISTER OF COMMUNICATIONS (SHRI BENI PRASAD VARMA): (a) to (c) The National Telecom Policy 1994 envisages provision of telephone on demand by 1997. This was to be accomplished with the participation of private sector complementing the efforts of Government.

Training in July, 1996. No such drive has been undertaken for OBCs.

(b) The Special Recruitment Drive was launched on 15.7.1996.

The details of backlog vacancies in respect of SCs and STs identified in Department of Telecommunications and Department of Post are enclosed at Statement I and II (See below).

Efforts are on to fill these backlog vacancies at the earliest.

The waiting list of telephones in Delhi as on 31st March, 1996 was 9221. The waiting list has risen to 38941 as on 31st January, 1997, inspite of providing 1,02,576 telephones connection from April, 1996 upto January, 1997.

The waiting period for telephone has gradually reduced. As on 31st January, 1997, in 39 out of 55 exchanges of Delhi, there is no waiting list even for the Non-OYT category of telephones. Availability of telephone on demand depends upon the growth of demand and the extent of participation of private sector in providing this service.
